

P.6 Mock interview

Every year our school serves the community by organizing a mock interview for P.6 students who are interested in polishing their interview skills. Some of our students would volunteer to help as English ambassadors. Their main duty is to assist the candidates and conduct the interview in English. Jonte and James have volunteered to help this year and let's see how they felt about the experience.

In early November, I took part in the P.6 Mock Interview as an English ambassador.

On the day of the interview, I arrived at school 15 minutes earlier in order to familiarize myself with the interview procedures.

As I was walking down to the ground floor to pick up the P.6 students, nervousness overtook me and I could feel my heart racing. Luckily, I later found out that I was working together with another classmate to interview, which gave me a boost of confidence. Then, we escorted the students to the interview room and conducted the interview.

The interview went wonderfully, I was quite surprised by how good some of the P.6 students' English speaking skills were. After the interview, we escorted the students back to the ground floor and our job was done.

Being an English ambassador at the P.6 mock interview was such a wonderful learning experience for me. I look forward to being an English ambassador again in the next P.6 mock interview.

I am the interviewer by James Lam

I'm sure that all secondary school students have at least one experience of being interviewed. Do you remember yours?

I remember attending a mock interview at this school as a primary 6 student about five years ago. But now the roles have been reversed when my English teacher asked me to be an interviewer at this year's mock interview for primary 6 students. I was absolutely thrilled.

Not only could I have more opportunities to practise my English, I could also help primary students prepare for their official secondary school interviews in future.

I've seen some unexpected responses from them during the interview, and to be honest I was intrigued by how much they've prepared for this and how well they've participated in it. In the end I got to see the teachers give them advice on how they can improve their skills and performance for their upcoming interviews.

Overall, I think that it was a very meaningful day. I've gained some leadership skills, and this has improved my communication skills as well. The experience can be very valuable for senior form students, and I am absolutely delighted to have the opportunity to take part in this event.
